MURDER TRIAL

"If the defendant was insane at the time of the commission of the crime, and the probate court so found him to be, he cannot now be brought to trial for a crime committed while under those conditions."

"The findings of the probate court cannot be questioned. If they adjudged him insane the higher court must abide by their findings. The validity of their action is unquestionable."

Judge Ambler in reply and in continuation of the argument said in part: "The finding by the probate court that he was insane does not decide whether the form of insanity was such that he was not able to ascertain right from wrong. Any form of insanity would not acquit him of his alleged crime."

"He has never been tried on the charge, neither has he been in jeopardy for it. The constitution says he has a right to be tried by a jury. Although he was tried on an insanity charge by the probate court I am of the opinion that it was only preliminary."

"Should he be brought to trial on the charge of first degree murder before a jury he would have the privilege to make the insanity plea a defense."

Prosecutor Upham in the substantiation of his plea that Smith be brought to trial before a jury said:

"We acknowledge that the probate court had a certain jurisdiction but my contention is that the final hearing on the insanity of a person having committed a crime, although adjudged insane by a lower court to have been insane at the time the crime was committed, shall be heard before a jury."

"We stood by the lower court's jurisdiction as long as he was confined in the insane asylum and was still insane, but the moment he was released and was legally certified as having been restored to his reason we then contended that he should be tried on the charge standing against him."

"In brief my contention is that a jury of twelve men must finally pass on the question of his sanity. While the lower court has jurisdiction on the criminal insanity the final hearing must be heard before a jury. The defense can raise the question of insanity as a defense at that time."

After a number of lengthy citations of authorities on the law involved the court announced that the matter would be taken under consideration until a later date.

The legal questions set forth by the introduction of the plea of abatement in the case and the arguments there-in are many and delicate and have attracted a great amount of attention among the legal fraternity. Its outcome is being watched with interest. Should Judge Ambler overrule the motion in abatement the trial of the case will be one of the first in the May term. Smith is in the county jail.

ANNUAL INSPECTION

Of Co. C, O. N. G., Showed the Command to Be in Excellent Condition—Improved Finances.

The annual inspection of Co. C, O. N. G., took place at the armory on the corner of North and Market streets, last evening. The inspecting officers were Captain Ross, 7th Ohio Infantry, and Major Mac Lee Wilson, assistant adjutant general, second brigade, with his headquarters at Columbus. The report cannot be made public but it was stated that the property of the company was in fine shape. There was 100 per cent of property on hand and 94 per cent attendance. The company has an enlistment of 58 men and two officers, Capt. U. E. Clay and First Lieutenant Houser. Company C is in fine shape in every way, their finances having been bettered by the hearty response to the call for contributing members. The contributing member must pay a fee of $5, but he is excused from jury duty and exempt from the road tax for that year, making the real expense practically nothing, while the benefit to the company is great. Col. Weybrecht, of Alliance, and Major P. C. Gerlach, of Wooster, were present at the inspection. The members of the company have been working hard for the past week to perfect their drill and get their equipment into the best possible condition, which was manifested last night by their fine appearance and the precision of their drill.

This evening Co. K, of Alliance, will entertain the members of Co. C at Alliance. They will have their inspection at that time.

THE AMATEURS

Will Have a Night Soon at the Grand Opera House, When Prizes Will Be Given.

Manager Love, of the Grand opera house is so well pleased with the generous patronage bestowed upon that place of amusement during the season which is soon to come to a close, that he is about to spring a genuine and welcome surprise upon the Canton amusement loving public. He is already making plans for an evening of vaudeville by exclusive home amateur talent. That there is plenty of material here from which to select a pleasing program no one who is in the least manner posted doubts. Both in talent and variety the only difficulty will be in making the selections from which to form a bill that will please all tastes, because of the wealth of talent that is certain to be presented for consideration.

Manager Love and his assistants will at once begin the work of making choice of acts in the vaudeville line from which to construct a program for the entertainment which will probably be given about April 26. The opera house management will furnish a complete orchestra, but necessary costumes must be provided by the participants. Substantial prizes will be awarded by decision of competent judges to be selected before the evening of the performance. All performers must show that they are competent to amuse the public before being accepted for the competition.

THE EAGLES

Preparing Plans for Coming Convention—City Will Be Illuminated.

The executive committee of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 110, met last night. Representatives were chosen by Chairman Rommel to visit the different aeries in the state and extend them a personal invitation to attend the coming convention. These different committees will start out on their duties next Monday morning and will continue up to the time of the convention, visiting the different lodges on their meeting nights. The committee on decorations has prepared plans to erect electric arches at the intersections of the main streets in the downtown parts of the city, and along with other decorations it is planned to have the business section of the city present a gala appearance.

A SMALLPOX CASE

It appears that Canton's delivery from smallpox was shortlived and a new case was reported yesterday. The victim is James H. Custer, of 116 Bedford avenue. Mr. Custer had been ill several days but the real nature of the disease was not discovered until yesterday morning. Sanitary Officer Thompson immediately notified Dr. Stoner, the smallpox physician, who took charge of the case at once. This is the third case in the city in two weeks and officials are slightly alarmed.

SPEECH PARALYZED

Man Who Becomes Dumb Whenever He Gets Drunk—Arrested on Suspicion.

Edward Petree was arrested by Detective Ryan and Patrolman Arff yesterday afternoon on a charge of suspicion. In a burly sack he carried a number of large brass valves weighing about 50 pounds which the officers think are stolen. An investigation is being made.

A man whose name could not be learned was brought in last night by Patrolman Knoble on a charge of intoxication. The man is the victim of a certain brand of jag which is said to be very rare and with every good souse he loses the power of speech.

He was arrested about a year ago, and the officers becoming alarmed, called the city physician who had him admitted to the infirmary. As soon as the effects of the jag wore off, his speaker opened up for business again and the man was discharged.

Cleveland Republicans, Special to Morning News.

Cleveland, March 28.—Republicans here who favor Taft for president are willing to go Foraker one better in submitting a plan for getting at the sentiment of Ohio with reference to who shall have endorsement for head of the national ticket in 1908 for senator.

It is ascertained that a better plan than Foraker's is to give every voter opportunity of registering his preference for presidential nomination and senatorship independent of convention.

ANSWERS RATIONAL.

One thing was admitted by both sides after the conclusion of Thaw's examination for the day. His answers to all questions taken by themselves, were rational. As to Thaw's manner—his actions and expression—in making the answers, there was a difference of opinion. His lawyers said that they were perfectly satisfied with the way he conducted himself and that he must have made an excellent impression on the commission. He was bright and cheerful, they said, and showed no petulance.

There was no denial from the district attorney's office that Thaw's answers were rational enough. It was said, however, that his bearing was not that of a man in possession of his mental faculties. Beyond that there was no comment from the district attorney's side of the case.

NO PHYSICAL EXAMINATION.

Thaw's lawyers declared that they did not believe that the commission would think it necessary, after having heard Thaw, to have a physical examination made of him. It is the intention to call Tombs keepers and others who have had a chance to observe Thaw in the last few months. There is a possibility, too, that Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and Mrs. William Thaw will be called by the commission to tell of conversations they had had with Thaw since he has been in the Tombs. Both Lawyers Hartridge and Peabody said in the affidavits they submitted in opposition to the appointment of the commission, that they had letters from Thaw which they would produce if the commission wished to see them. It is not unlikely that the commission will call for these letters.
